Minor Assignments General Guidelines

Due

- Ongoing, see weekly schedules. Some weeks may have one, two, or even three minor assignments and some weeks may have none.

General Assignment

Throughout the semester you will be required to complete a number of smaller, informal assignments. While their focus, requirements, and nature will vary from assignment to assignment, their purpose will always be the same: to provide low-stakes opportunities to explore and practice pragmatic issues related to the course.

A typical Minor Assignment might ask you apply what you've just learned by creating a series of word cloud to analyze a text, create a graphic or a chart, completing a tutorial, or editing a document.

General Requirements

Specific requirements for each Minor Assignment, including submission guidelines, will be included in the weekly schedules.

Grading

Most Minor Assignments will be graded as satisfactory (full credit), unsatisfactory (partial credit or request to redo with the option of earning full or partial credit), or not submitted (no credit).
